Capturing the Moment

Over the past few years, I have found myself drawn to photography – specifically nature photography – not only as a way to capture pictures, but as a way to see.

This year, I became a member of both the Beachwood Photography Group and the Chagrin Valley Camera Club, and I am grateful to continue learning from both. Each club offers something different; both have helped me understand that photography is less about the camera and more about perspective, patience, composition, light, and storytelling.

The heart of photography is the practice of noticing – and then capturing a feeling, a mood, a memory, or an emotion that lingers. Sure, there are settings to learn and lenses to understand, but the deeper lesson relates to observing, slowing down, and recognizing beauty in the ordinary – how to frame an image and resonate with the “why” behind why I took the shot in the first place.

Last month I participated in a Beachwood Photography Group project that was created 12 years ago by Herb Ascherman, who leads the club. The assignment was to create a self-portrait that reflects who we are today, not who we were in the past or who we hope to become in the future: Who we are right now, at this exact moment in life.

Herb first created the project because, as he put it, “It seemed like a good idea that would challenge those who participated and, once completed, it would become a valuable life document.”

Instructions for this assignment were to compose a self-portrait with eight to 10 items that represent who we are today and then have someone shoot it.

In my self-portrait, I have photos of loved ones and items that represent my interests and shape my days. I also included my 2026 vision board and word of the year – pause – as a reminder to slow down and focus on what I feel is important.

At every stage of life, we grow, change, stretch, regroup, and sometimes face challenges that reshape us. This project, when done regularly, becomes a visual timeline – something we can share, revisit, and reflect upon. Much like a journal, it helps us see what continues to serve us, what no longer serves us, and how we are evolving with the passage of time.

Now, I extend this challenge to you: Create your own self-portrait.

You don’t need an expensive camera or perfect lighting – a cell-phone camera will do. Gather some objects that reflect who you are today. Arrange them, stand among them, and have someone capture this moment in time. Then, repeat the process next year. Even more powerful? Make this a family project.

Over time, you will thank yourself as you look back at these images and reminisce.

I am especially grateful that, through both the Beachwood Photography Group and the Chagrin Valley Camera Club, I am continually learning, stretching creatively, and seeing the world with fresh eyes. Last month, I participated in my first juried show with the Chagrin Valley Camera Club and was honored to place third in the black-and-white category with Sovereign Stare, a photo I took last summer in Botswana.

Both the portrait assignment and photography competition pulled me from my comfort zone and reminded me that photography is not simply about what we see through the lens. It is about what we notice, the story we’re trying to tell, the lighting, and how we feel from the outcome of captured memories.

With spring in the air, let’s take time to notice what is blooming – both internally and externally – and to capture the moments that matter.

Photography is not simply about what we see through the lens. It is about what we notice, the story we’re trying to tell, and the memories we choose to capture.

"True to our prediction, Beachwood has experienced a robust selling season this spring with the number of sold listings up by 25% in April! Market time was reduced by 52% and average list price to sale price ratio improved to 101%. Home sales statistics for Beachwood are consistently better than the national average. Northeastern Ohio continues to be a desirable location attracting new residents from out of state, while Beachwood remains very competitive due to the quality and age of the housing stock, excellent schools, community amenities, and a stable commercial tax base!"

Cleveland Pops Orchestra

A Love Story Set to Music

By Debby Zelman Rapoport

In many ways, Cleveland Pops Orchestra is a love story set to music. It began with a shared vision between Carl Topilow and his late wife, Shirley Morgenstern Topilow, rooted in belief that orchestral music could be exceptional, accessible, and fun. Although The Cleveland Orchestra had a strong presence, it did not have an orchestra devoted to symphonic pops. Carl and Shirley believed there was room in the city's cultural landscape for both – and that Northeast Ohio audiences would embrace the energy, familiarity, and excitement of pops music performed by a full symphonic orchestra.

Founded in 1993, Cleveland Pops Orchestra grew from that belief. After years of hard work, community support, and the dedication of friends and believers, the orchestra made its public debut on Oct. 12, 1996. Today, Cleveland Pops is known as one of the few independent symphonic pops orchestras in the nation.

Since its creation, Carl has been bringing music to life from the podium with warmth, artistry, and a sense of showmanship. As founding conductor and music director, he has shaped programs that blend the familiar and the unexpected – Broadway, Hollywood, jazz, big band, light classics, patriotic marches, and popular favorites – performed with the richness of a full symphonic orchestra.

Cleveland Pops Celebrates a Milestone Season

Cleveland Pops Orchestra is celebrating its 30th anniversary season, marking three decades of music that has filled concert halls, lifted spirits, and reached into the community. The organization announced its 2026–2027 season as part of this milestone celebration, with performances at Severance Music Center and special programming designed to showcase the breadth, energy, and heart of symphonic pops. In addition to the shows listed below, the orchestra will be performing this summer in outdoor concerts. Be sure to visit clevelandpops.com for details.

Carl's love of music began in childhood. His older brother was a pianist and, when Carl was 9, he was given a clarinet. By 11, he had added saxophone and, by 13, flute, playing in a local community orchestra. At 15, he conducted The Star-Spangled Banner at a high school basketball game and, at 18, he conducted Beethoven's Coriolan Overture with the community orchestra – early opportunities that helped point him toward the path he would follow.

That same year, Carl attended Camp Indian Hill, an arts camp that became a turning point in his life.

"It was a revelation," he recalls. "I realized I wasn't the odd man out. I was surrounded by people who loved the same things I loved – music, art, dance, and drama."

Playing the clarinet along with LPs of the music of Beethoven and Brahms deepened what he describes as a "tremendous love" for orchestral music. He went on to participate in all-state orchestra and band, and initially enrolled at Rutgers University before realizing, just a few weeks into the semester, that he needed to fully pursue music. He transferred to the Manhattan School of Music, where he continued building the foundation for a life in performance, teaching, and conducting.

To help pay his way, Carl played saxophone and clarinet at bar mitzvahs and weddings, including summer jobs in the Catskill Mountains beginning at age 16. Although he later earned a master's degree in music education and taught music in the Bronx, his dream was to conduct.

"I always wanted to be a conductor," he said. "Although it was a long process, I had the determination, willpower, and a great desire to succeed."

Carl's professional path eventually brought him to Cleveland. After serving as assistant conductor of the Denver Symphony and then conductor of the National Repertory Orchestra (NRO), a summer festival based in Breckenridge, Colorado, he came to Cleveland to hold auditions for potential new NRO orchestra members. While here, the dean from the Cleveland Institute of Music approached him about a job opportunity – a conversation that landed him a position as conductor of the CIM orchestra and instructor for the master's program in orchestral conducting.

Carl had always loved Broadway and show music, so when he and Shirley saw an opportunity in Cleveland's cultural landscape to create a pops orchestra, they acted on it. After hearing pops programming elsewhere, they wondered why Cleveland did not have an orchestra devoted to symphonic pops.

"Shirley and I asked, 'Why can't we do that here in Cleveland?'" said. "There was no pops orchestra here and we believed there was room for both The Cleveland Orchestra and a pops orchestra."

They shared their idea with Thomas Morris, then executive director of The Cleveland Orchestra, and received his blessing. Cleveland Pops first performed at venues including the Convocation Center and the Ohio Theatre, making Severance Hall its home in 2000.

Shirley brought the vision, leadership, and steady heart that helped give Carl's musical dream a home. As founding president and CEO, she understood that an orchestra is not built on music alone. It is built on relationships, trust, persistence, and the ability to make people feel part of something meaningful. Her influence helped transform an idea into an enduring Northeast Ohio institution.

Among Carl's many accomplishments, Cleveland Pops remains the most personal expression of his life's work – a place where music meets memory, where concerts become celebrations, and where audiences of all ages can experience the power of live orchestral music in a way that feels welcoming and alive.

Today, that legacy is being carried forward by the next generation. As director of strategy and planning, Carl and Shirley's daughter Emily is helping guide the Cleveland Pops into its next chapter – with deep respect for the organization's past and fresh energy for its future.

"My parents founded this organization nearly 30 years ago, and my vision is to carry it strong into the next 30 years and beyond," she said. "I want to bring new energy to the Cleveland Pops and elevate its presence across the community. We have something truly special here, a cultural gem, and it's important that more people experience it and feel connected to it."

"We have something truly special here, a cultural gem, and it's important that more people experience it and feel connected to it."

~ Emily Topilow, Cleveland Pops Director of Strategy and Planning

Emily Topilow, Cleveland Pops director of strategy and planning, is honored to carry forward her parents' legacy from the desk where her mother once led the organization.

For her, the work is both professional and profoundly personal. She now works from her mother's desk – the same desk where Shirley spent countless hours building and nurturing the organization.

"It's truly an honor to sit at my mother's desk," she said. "I have vivid memories of being a child, playing under it while she ran the organization. Growing up in the Pops office shaped who I am, and there's something deeply meaningful about continuing her work in that same space. I keep a photo of us together on the desk, and it's a daily reminder of her guidance and the legacy I'm proud to carry forward."

The Beachwood connection makes that legacy even more meaningful. A Beachwood High School graduate, Emily now helps lead the Pops from its Beachwood office – a full-circle moment that reflects both family history and community pride.

"Growing up in Beachwood taught me the value of community," she said. "The Pops has long been connected to that spirit. We're proud members of the Beachwood Chamber of Commerce, which played an important role in the organization's early growth. There's a real sense of camaraderie and pride in continuing our work here. For me, it truly feels like coming home."

That welcoming spirit is also reflected in the orchestra's educational mission. Through programs such as the Cleveland Pops Youth Orchestra and scholarship opportunities, the Pops continues to nurture new generations of musicians and music lovers. Its work reaches beyond the concert hall, enriching the cultural fabric of Northeast Ohio and reminding us that music is not only something we listen to – it is something we share.

Though Shirley is no longer here to experience each standing ovation, her presence still echoes in every note, every smile, and every moment when the music lifts an audience beyond the everyday. Her legacy lives on in the orchestra she helped bring to life, in the family that continues her work, and in the joy the Cleveland Pops continues to share with the community.

As the Cleveland Pops celebrates its milestone anniversary season, Carl and Shirley's shared dream continues to play on. What began as a vision has become a lasting gift to Northeast Ohio: a cultural institution built on artistry, love, perseverance, community, and the belief that music has the power to bring people together.

The Pickleball Boom

How to Keep Playing Strong

- According to Someone Addicted to the Sport

I have a confession: I'm completely addicted to pickleball.

What started as "I'll just try it out" quickly turned into:

- "One more game..."
- "Best 2 out of 3..."
- "Okay, maybe just one last match before dinner..."

Suddenly, I found myself playing multiple days per week, chasing shots I probably had no business chasing, and waking up sore in muscles I forgot existed.

Then it happened.

First came the elbow pain. Then came the Achilles tendon pain. Like many pickleball players, I ignored the warning signs:

- tight muscles
- stiffness
- soreness after playing
- not stretching enough
- not recovering properly

I convinced myself I was "fine."

Spoiler alert: I was not fine.

As a physical therapist, and pickleball enthusiast, I now see firsthand how common these injuries have become. The sport is fantastic for activity, fitness, socialization, coordination, and cardiovascular health. But the fast movements, repetitive swings, quick pivots, and competitive nature of the game can place significant stress on the body. Especially when we suddenly go from winter hibernation to "four games in a row without warming up."

Warning Signs You May Be Overdoing It

You limp the morning after playing

Your first few steps out of bed are painful

You skip stretching because "you'll be fine"

Your recovery takes longer every week

You say, "It's probably nothing" multiple times per day

The Pickleball Boom – How to Keep Playing Strong

6025 Kruse Dr #123, Solon, OH 44139

The Most Common Pickleball Injuries

Pickleball Elbow

This was my personal wake-up call.

One of the most common issues involves irritation of the tendons on the outside of the elbow from repetitive paddle gripping and swinging.

Players often notice:

- pain opening jars
- soreness lifting objects
- discomfort gripping the paddle
- aching after matches

This injury tends to creep up slowly — until suddenly even pouring coffee becomes painful and annoying. I personally had difficulty spraying hairspray!

Achilles Tendon Pain

Quick starts, sudden stops, lunging, and explosive movements place heavy stress on the Achilles tendon. Tight calves and poor flexibility dramatically increase the risk.

Many players describe:

- stiffness in the morning
- pain pushing off
- soreness after activity
- tightness walking downstairs

Ignoring it usually does not make it better.

Trust me.

Shoulder Injuries

Repeated overhead shots and fast volleys can irritate the rotator cuff and shoulder tendons, especially when posture and upper back mobility are limited.

Common complaints include:

- pain reaching overhead
- weakness during serves
- difficulty sleeping on the shoulder
- stiffness after playing

Knee Pain & Ankle Sprains

Pickleball requires rapid side-to-side movement and quick changes in direction. Weak hips, poor balance, and decreased ankle stability can increase stress on both the knees and ankles.

And, yes: Sometimes the court seems much farther away when chasing a short shot than it did a few years ago!

How to Help Prevent Injuries

The good news? A few simple habits can dramatically reduce injury risk.

1. Stretch Your Calves

Tight calves increase stress on the Achilles tendon and knees.

Quick Stretch: Stand facing a wall with one leg behind you and heel flat. Hold 30 seconds.

A BIG thank you to the amazing staff at ACE Pickleball Club in Solon!

Like Cheers, it's the club "where everyone knows your name."

2. Strengthen Your Glutes & Legs

Strong hips help reduce stress on the knees and ankles.

Exercise: Sit-to-Stand Squats - Stand up from a chair without using your hands if possible. Repeat 10–15 times.

3. Improve Balance

Balance training helps reaction time and ankle stability.

Exercise: Single-Leg Stand Balance on one leg for 20–30 seconds.

Bonus challenge: Try it while turning your head side to side or close eyes.

4. Stretch Your Forearms & Wrists

This can help reduce stress on the elbow tendons.

Quick Stretch: Straighten your arm with palm down and gently pull fingers downward until a gentle stretch is felt.

Play Smarter — Not Less

Nobody wants to stop playing pickleball. I certainly don't!

The goal is not to avoid playing, it's to prepare the body properly so you can continue doing what you love safely and comfortably.

Physical therapy can help improve:

- flexibility
- strength
- balance
- mobility
- injury prevention

so players can stay active and keep enjoying the sport long-term.

Because the only thing worse than losing a pickleball match, is having to sit out and watch everyone else play!

Utilizing Advanced Estate Planning Strategies

Estate planning represents a fundamental aspect of wealth management for all households; however, there are some strategies that some families utilize to save on taxes and ensure their assets are protected. For high-net-worth individuals, estate planning transcends the drafting of a simple will. It necessitates a comprehensive strategy to reduce estate taxes, safeguard assets from litigation and creditors, and ensure wealth distribution follows the client's intentions.

Irrevocable trusts play a pivotal role in this process, as assets transferred into such trusts are no longer considered part of the client's estate. Consequently, these assets are exempt from estate tax calculations and are shielded from potential claims, thereby reinforcing the security of family wealth. Various irrevocable trusts, including a Spousal Lifetime Access Trust (SLAT), Grantor Retained Annuity Trust (GRAT), Irrevocable Life Insurance Trust (ILIT) and Ohio Legacy Trusts, serve as essential instruments within these strategies, facilitating the protection and continuity of financial legacies. Let's take a closer look at how each of these trusts works.

Spousal Lifetime Access Trust (SLAT)

A Spousal Lifetime Access Trust is a widely utilized estate planning tool among wealthy families and is excellent for those in a "happy marriage." This irrevocable trust enables one spouse to transfer assets into a trust for the benefit of the other spouse (and potentially other beneficiaries) while simultaneously removing those assets from the taxable estate. The principal advantages of a SLAT include the reduction of estate tax liability, protection from creditors, continued financial access for the beneficiary spouse, and the accrual of asset appreciation outside the taxable estate. The spouse can use funds from the trust to maintain their standard of living even though the trust assets have been removed from the estate. SLATs most often terminate at the death of the beneficiary spouse, at which point the trust assets pass to the other SLAT beneficiaries (typically a younger generation), either outright or in trust. Assets held in trust are then completely protected, and the beneficiaries can take distributions as needed.

Grantor Retained Annuity Trust (GRAT)

Another effective estate planning instrument is the Grantor Retained Annuity Trust, which enables the grantor to transfer appreciating assets to beneficiaries while minimizing exposure to gift and estate taxes. Under this arrangement, the grantor transfers assets into the GRAT and retains the right to receive annuity payments for a predetermined period. Upon the expiration of the term, any residual assets in the trust pass to the designated beneficiaries without incurring additional estate taxes. For example, if you transfer $1 million to a GRAT, receive an annuity payment, and during the term, it grows to $1.5 million, the $500,000 in growth will pass to your beneficiaries free of estate and gift tax. This strategy is ideal for business owners or individuals with rapidly appreciating assets.

The effectiveness of a GRAT is contingent upon the appreciation of trust assets at a rate exceeding the IRS's assumed rate of return, thereby allowing excess growth to be transferred tax-free. The principal benefits of a GRAT include the minimization of gift taxes, the efficient transfer of wealth, and the strategic use of asset appreciation. Nevertheless, this trust structure is subject to risks, such as mortality risk, wherein the premature death of the grantor results in the inclusion of trust assets in the estate, and the possibility of insufficient asset appreciation, which may negate the intended tax advantages.

Irrevocable Life Insurance Trust (ILIT)

Beyond SLATs and GRATs, families frequently employ additional irrevocable trusts to optimize asset protection and estate management. An Irrevocable Life Insurance Trust (ILIT) serves to exclude life insurance proceeds from the taxable estate, ensuring that beneficiaries receive the full policy value while simultaneously providing liquidity to cover estate expenses and shielding insurance proceeds from creditors. ILITs were very popular in the 1990s and early 2000s however, their use is not as popular with the federal estate tax exclusion now at $15 million.

Ohio Legacy Trust (aka Domestic Asset Protection Trust)

An Ohio Legacy Trust, designed for intergenerational wealth preservation, facilitates the transfer of assets across multiple generations without incurring estate taxes at each transfer, thereby preserving family wealth and affording protection from creditors and divorce settlements. An Ohio Legacy Trust, aka Domestic Asset Protection Trust (DAPT), is structured to insulate assets from creditors while allowing the grantor (creator) to remain a discretionary beneficiary under specific conditions. This trust mechanism enhances asset protection, offers potential estate tax benefits, and ensures continued financial security for the grantor.

If the primary objective is the efficient transfer of wealth with minimal tax implications, a DAPT may be most suitable. A SLAT, by contrast, is particularly advantageous for individuals seeking to provide financial security for a spouse while simultaneously achieving estate tax savings. DAPTs are often used by clients with a higher risk of lawsuits, such as doctors, business owners, or athletes. They are a great way to protect their wealth while also reducing potential estate tax concerns.

Be Cautious of Offshore Asset Protection Trusts

Although not recommended, another popular source of protecting assets is an offshore asset protection trust. These trusts, while potentially beneficial for asset protection, come with several risks, including high costs, legal complexity, and potential IRS scrutiny. These trusts also involve relinquishing direct control over assets and can be subject to political and economic instability in the foreign jurisdiction. Additionally, U.S. courts can still exert jurisdiction over assets located within the U.S., and offshore trusts may not be effective against certain types of claims, such as IRS penalties or certain governmental agency actions.

Which Trust is Right for You?

If your assets are nearing the estate tax exemption, one or a combination of the above-named trusts would benefit your family. Note that even if estate taxes are not a concern, a revocable family trust is always recommended to avoid probate and protect heirs. Joan Spoerl, M.A.T., director of Dolly Parton's Imagination Library at The Literacy Cooperative, will address the growing literacy emergency locally and nationwide. Recent research and reports highlight that we are in the midst of a literacy emergency both locally and nationwide. Two out of three children in Ohio are not ready for kindergarten – numbers that increase to eight out of 10 in the city of Cleveland. When a child starts behind, they often stay behind and it's hard to catch up.

Nationwide, high school seniors tested at the lowest levels ever in reading in the history of the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP). There's been a 40% decline in the number of Americans reading for pleasure between 2003 and 2023. College professors report students who balk at the thought of reading an entire book.

In this presentation, you'll learn about an important, evidence-based and cost-effective solution already making a difference among youngsters and families in our community. Join us in embracing hope and imagination to reverse these trends.

Another Year ...

By Jennifer Stern

Birthdays are markers of time passing: a time to reflect on life, values, goals, and to celebrate the opportunity to be here and begin again.

Birthdays are a time to pause and appreciate the miracle of life. They are a time to consider the people we surround ourselves with – an intentional choice, the energy we bring to the rooms we enter (positive, productive, collaborative, compassionate), the way we filter life (gratitude awareness, noticing the glimmers, the love, what is working still).

I have written about the practice of a gratitude soundtrack. This year as I am fortunate enough to enjoy and appreciate another birthday (a true blessing), I am even more attuned to the practice of recognizing what is good. To filter the positives.

I do this recognizing duality. Life isn't always easy. My health isn't always good. My body doesn't look or feel as it once did. My brain has even less recall and clarity! Sometimes I feel sadly nostalgic for what was, and who was here beside me. Life is real and messy for all of us.

The awareness of my personal confirmation bias is helpful. Your mind is always looking to prove what you believe, your personal narrative. Your mind will reinforce your personal narrative. Positive or negative, it finds evidence to match the reality you are telling yourself. If you filter the negative, your mind will look to prove the negative. So I try to be mindful, aware of the positives, so that my mind will try to prove how fortunate I am, how beautiful the world can be. I look for beauty in nature, kindness in others, the purpose in the work that I do, the relationships that I am lucky enough to nurture. I surround myself with strong, engaged, unique, funny, smart women who support me unconditionally in good times and bad. As my Mom used to say, you take on the energy (positive or negative) of the people you surround yourself with.

So, here's to another year of life! I will not take this time for granted. It is gifted time.

The Injustice of the Callais Decision

By State Senator Kent Smith

On April 29, the U.S. Supreme Court issued its decision in Louisiana v. Callais. History will remember it as one of the court's worst civil rights decisions in American history, on par with the Dred Scott decision of 1857 and Plessy v. Ferguson of 1896.

In Callais, the Roberts-led Supreme Court weakened key provisions of the 1965 Voting Rights Act that had protected non-white citizens and helped promote multiracial representation in state legislatures.

Let me say it clearly: This decision is a betrayal of the American people because it will limit citizen voices in the legislative process.

When fair representation is dismantled, the communities that are harmed the most are the ones that lose lawmakers. Part of what is central to democracy is that it is a system of competing interests, which is to say that people need representatives who fight for their districts. If certain citizen groups have their voices reduced, then problems go unsolved – and unsolved problems, when not addressed, can move from solvable to overwhelming.

The Roberts court's decision to act now, ahead of the 2026 midterm elections, is another plot in the Republican effort to maintain power regardless of election outcomes.

The Roberts court attempted to understate their true intentions, but Justice Elena Kagan, who wrote the blistering dissent, was having none of it.

Callais was a long time coming. As Kagan writes, "For over a decade, this court has had its sights set on the Voting Rights Act."

"The majority claims only to be updating our Section 2 laws, but in fact, those updates eviscerate the law."

Again, from Kagan, "Today's decision renders Section 2 all but a dead letter."

What is most important to understand is Callais marks a change in strategy for the Roberts court. They learned with the Dobbs decision to not "overturn" popular law with decades of precedent – like Roe.

So they didn't technically overturn the Voting Rights Act, they just made it completely toothless.

But our response must be similar to when we lost Roe.

We must not idly sit back and take it. Inaction is not an option. States need to enact their own voting rights legislation so that the Callais decision will, in time, be on the shelf next to Dred Scott and Plessy, and America's reality will match its ideals.

State Senator Kent Smith represents Ohio's 21st Senate District which includes most of the East Side suburbs of Cuyahoga County and about 33% of the City of Cleveland.

From Beachwood to the Met: Megan Piccione High Jewelry Makes a Dazzling Debut

In 2024, when Megan Piccione made the list of Jewelers of America’s “20 Under 40 in Jewelry Retail,” she was recognized for her leadership, innovation, and commitment to elevating the jewelry industry. Just two years later, the Beachwood High School graduate and third-generation jeweler reached an even brighter stage: the Met Gala red carpet.

The 2026 Met Gala, held May 4, at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City, celebrated the theme “Costume Art.” One of the evening’s standout moments came when model, activist, and benefit committee member Lauren Wasser appeared on the red carpet wearing a custom collection created exclusively by Megan Piccione High Jewelry. Designed and fabricated by Megan and her father, master jeweler Dave Piccione, the pieces marked the official debut of the Beachwood-based atelier on one of fashion’s most globally recognized stages.

For Megan, the moment still feels almost impossible to absorb. “I’m in complete disbelief,” she said. “I’m so overwhelmed with joy, pride, and gratitude.”

The opportunity began with an email from a Los Angeles stylist asking whether Megan had jewelry available for a special event in May. At first, she did not know the client. A phone call followed, and Megan learned that her pieces would be submitted for possible Met Gala approval.

“I thought the stylists choose jewelry for their clients,” Megan said. “That’s not how it works. Everything has to be approved by Vogue and Anna Wintour, the global editorial director of Vogue and chief content officer for Condé Nast.”

Megan poured her creativity into a look book of renderings and concepts, each designed to capture Lauren’s strength, style, and presence. Once the jewelry was approved, the pace intensified and in a remarkably short time, she and her father designed three new show-specific pieces.

“It was an out-of-reality moment,” Megan said. “To know that what my dad and I created was going to be on the red carpet of the world’s biggest stage – we were both so honored.”

Megan knew what Lauren would be wearing and worked closely with the stylist to create a powerful, cohesive look. Lauren, a double amputee following toxic shock syndrome and an outspoken advocate for awareness, is known for her fearless style and signature gold-shimmer prosthetic legs. For Megan, Lauren’s presence carried strength and meaning.

“She is a powerhouse of a woman,” Megan said. “To come out looking like that, with her attitude and grace – she is a total boss.”

The suite included significant diamonds sourced specifically for Lauren, including a nearly 13-carat marquise diamond and another dramatic eight-carat diamond piece (pictured). Megan described the marquise as particularly special because of its unusual cut and faceting.

When Lauren stepped onto the red carpet, Megan and her husband, Giancarlo Butto, were in the lobby of the Plaza Hotel watching others descend the staircase. Then her phone lit up with the notification that Lauren had arrived.

“The first photo was really amazing,” she said. “The look came together flawlessly. She looked incredible.”

Megan’s path to this very special moment began long before this gala. After graduating BHS in 2013, she studied at Gemological Institute of America, planning to carry on her family’s legacy. Her grandfather and father built a reputation in the jewelry business rooted in honesty, quality, and luxury – standards that Megan continues to uphold today.

At the heart of the brand is the belief that true luxury is personal. “It is authored, not sourced,” she said. “It’s one thing to buy a piece that’s already made or to find something online. We create something that is not mass produced. It’s one of one, created for the individual soul who will wear it and love it.”

For Megan, the Met Gala achievement is as much a family story as a fashion milestone. Her father, Dave, is her creative partner and greatest mentor, while her husband, Giancarlo, and her mother, Harriet, remain steady sources of support behind the brand’s growing success.

After the event, Megan recalled Lauren saying, “Your dad is a legend.” To Megan, that meant everything.

"I'm honored and humbled to be an independent jeweler among the most renowned in the world."

"He's so talented and humble." Megan paused, then added, "I'm so grateful and proud that we get to do this together as a father-daughter duo. Working with him is a dream come true and none of this could be done without him."

Megan is keenly aware of what it meant to appear on the same stage as some of the world's most celebrated luxury houses. "Most designers were from large houses," she said. "I'm honored and humbled to have been there as an independent jeweler among the most renowned in the world."

While the Met Gala brought Megan Piccione High Jewelry to an international stage, Megan remains deeply rooted in Beachwood. Her parents still live in the house where she grew up, her business is located on Enterprise Parkway, and she is reminded daily of the teachers, friends, neighbors, and community members who encouraged her along the way.

For a Beachwood designer whose business began with creativity, family, and determination, the Met Gala was more than a red-carpet moment. It was a shining reminder that world-class artistry can begin right here at home.

Her message to young artists and designers is simple: Take the risk. "Put yourself out there," she said. "You don't know when someone will finally say yes. Keep your head down, work hard, and don't compare yourself to others."

As for what comes next, Megan is still taking it all in. "Right now, I'm so grateful," she said. "I don't take this for granted. I'm a girl who likes to draw and create, and I get to do it every day."

Megan Piccione High Jewelry is located at 3201 Enterprise Pkwy. and is open by appointment only and some of the pieces created for Lauren are still available. For more information or to schedule an appointment, visit meganpiccione.com.

The Mayor's Message Welcoming Summer in Beachwood

Dear Beachwood Residents & Businesses,

After a long, snowy winter and an especially wet, cool spring, it is wonderful to finally enjoy warmer weather in Beachwood. June always brings a renewed sense of energy to our community, and this year is no exception. Families are heading outdoors, parks are full of activity, and neighbors are reconnecting after months spent indoors.

One of the clearest signs that summer is finally on its way is the opening of the Beachwood Family Aquatic Center (BFAC). BFAC is once again buzzing with families, friends, and residents enjoying one of Beachwood's most popular gathering places. Whether you are swimming, relaxing by the pool, or spending time with loved ones, the aquatic center remains a special part of summer in our city, and we are thrilled to welcome everyone back for another great season.

Summer also means the return of our camps and seasonal programming. This year, in response to the later start of the upcoming school year, we have extended camp sessions to better support families and ease the transition into fall schedules. I want to recognize our Community Services Department for its thoughtful and creative approach in meeting the needs of residents and guests. Their commitment to providing high-quality programming and meaningful experiences continues to make Beachwood an exceptional place to live and raise a family.

"Events like this (Juneteenth) remind us of the strength that comes from coming together and celebrating the diversity that enriches our city."

Looking ahead, I encourage everyone to attend our annual Juneteenth Community Celebration on Friday, June 19. In just a few short years, this event has become one of Beachwood's most meaningful and well-attended signature celebrations. Juneteenth is a day of joy, reflection, education, and unity, and I am proud of the way our community has embraced this important occasion.

Events like this remind us of the strength that comes from coming together and celebrating the diversity that enriches our city. I would also like to thank the Beachwood Schools African American Affinity Group for their continued collaboration and partnership in helping make this celebration a signature event each year. It's important to recognize our community sponsors for this event — Crestmont Automotive as the presenting sponsor, along with supporting sponsors Hunter Wellness Center and Life Bridge Therapy. The City of Beachwood values the partnership and investment our local businesses make in supporting events like this, and we are grateful for their contributions to these community celebrations.

As summer activity increases across the city, I ask residents to be patient and cautious on our roadways. Our annual road program is underway, along with several important infrastructure improvement projects throughout Beachwood. These investments are essential to maintaining the quality and safety of our community. Please be mindful of our Public Works employees and contracted crews who are working hard during the busy construction season.

Wishing you and your family a safe, enjoyable, and memorable start to summer in Beachwood.

Sincerely,

Mayor Justin Berns

Beachwood Connect: Understanding How Projects Move Forward

Ever wonder how a road project, or any major city initiative, moves from an idea to construction in the community?

Through the new Beachwood Connect webpage, residents can now get a closer look at how local government works, including the process behind projects like the annual road program. From planning and budgeting to City Council approvals and contractor selection, each step plays an important role in ensuring projects are thoughtfully planned, financially responsible, and responsive to community needs.

Beachwood Connect was created to make local government more accessible and understandable by providing clear information on how decisions are made, how legislation moves through City Council, and how residents can participate throughout the process.

Visit the Beachwood Connect webpage to read the full article on the annual road program and explore additional resources to help residents stay informed and engaged in the community's future.

Legislative Update

The city is focusing on six key areas essential for the city's advancement, which serve not only as a roadmap, but as a guiding light for our city's progress. Each legislative update highlights these areas.

April 20 City Council Meeting:

Infrastructure Improvements

Council members approved the GPD group to design the Connector Road Project between Harvard and Mercantile Roads. This road will provide access to the city's recently acquired 42.92 acres in Chagrin Highlands.

Economic Development

City Council voted to approve the rezoning of 24619 Chagrin Blvd. for a new business, Bark & Barrel dog daycare/bar/restaurant. The matter now heads back to the Planning Commission for approval of a final site plan, which council would also have to approve.

May 4 City Council Meeting:

Infrastructure Improvements

Council members approved an upgrade to the city's Wi-Fi system. New routers will be installed in municipal buildings and facilities, providing reliable, free Wi-Fi for employees, residents, and guests.

STAY ENGAGED IN YOUR COMMUNITY:

Meeting agendas, minutes including legislation, live and recorded meetings are available on our website at BeachwoodOhio.com or please attend an upcoming meeting.

Beachwood Firefighter Promotions

During the May 4 City Council meeting, Beachwood Fire Department firefighters David Peterson and Ben Welsh were recognized for their promotions and formally sworn into their new roles by Mayor Justin Berns following remarks from Fire Chief Steve Holtzman.

David Peterson was promoted to captain after 17 years with the department. Since joining Beachwood Fire in 2009, Peterson has served as a SWAT paramedic, member of the department's Honor Guard, and investigator with the Hillcrest Fire Investigative Unit. He holds multiple fire service certifications, completed Fire Officer I-IV training, and earned an associate degree in Fire Science.

Ben Welsh was promoted to lieutenant after 12 years with the department. Welsh has served on the SWAT team since 2022 and was recently named assistant commander. He is also a member of the Beachwood Honor Guard, mentors new firefighters, and was recognized as Beachwood's 2024 Firefighter of the Year.

The City of Beachwood congratulates Capt. Peterson and Lt. Welsh on their well-earned promotions and thanks them for their continued dedication to the community.

Beachwood Police Department Earns Statewide Accreditation

Beachwood Police was recently recognized as one of the latest Ohio law enforcement agencies to achieve accreditation through the Ohio Collaborative Law Enforcement Accreditation Program (OCLEAP), a statewide initiative established by Gov. DeWine in 2024. The voluntary program recognizes agencies that meet or exceed nearly three dozen professional standards covering areas such as professional conduct, bias-free policing, crisis intervention, and community engagement.

OCLEAP is the only state-administered law enforcement accreditation program in the nation offered at no cost to participating agencies. To date, just 24 agencies statewide have achieved full accreditation, reinforcing the Beachwood Police Department's commitment to professionalism, accountability, and excellence in public service. The department earned national accreditation through the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies (CALEA) in March.

Chief Grispino Receives Recognition for Excellence in Police Leadership

Beachwood Police Chief Dan Grispino has been named the recipient of the 2026 Michael J. Kelly Award for Excellence and Innovation in Policing from the Ohio Association of Chiefs of Police (OACP). The award recognizes an active OACP police chief who demonstrates exceptional leadership through innovation, creativity, and a commitment to advancing the Association's vision, mission, goals, and values. Chief Grispino was honored for his pursuit of excellence in policing and his dedication to professionalism and progressive law enforcement practices that strengthen both the Beachwood community and the broader public safety profession.

Second Annual Cookout with Cops

The Beachwood Police Department hosted its second annual "Cookout with Cops" event on May 13, drawing about 450 attendees to the Beachwood Playground for an afternoon of food, fun, and community connection.

About a dozen Beachwood police officers were in attendance, grilling hot dogs and offering kosher-friendly options while chatting with families and residents. Children took full advantage of the playground and played yard games with officers. The cookout also featured an interactive display of police motorcycles, bicycles, and e-bikes for kids to explore. Sponsored by T3 Performance and Hunter Wellness Center, the cookout provided food and camaraderie, creating stronger community connections.

Summer Camp Enhances Parent Communication with AI-Powered Information Line

Beachwood Community Services has embraced artificial intelligence (AI) through a unique partnership with DragonMatics, a Beachwood-based AI solutions company owned by resident Alejandro Camargo.

While remaining a people-first, service-focused community, the City of Beachwood continues exploring innovative tools that improve efficiency and responsiveness for residents. One of the newest enhancements is a 24/7 summer camp information line designed to help families quickly access routine camp information at any time of day.

“We initially met Alejandro through our Office of Economic Development over the winter,” said Derek Schroeder, Community Services Director. “That later led to a conversation about the call volume we receive for summer camp when directors and staff are out in the field with their attention focused on campers and daily activities.”

The conversation resulted in a new AI-powered voice agent that can assist with commonly asked questions regarding camp schedules, registration, procedures, and general information. The system also allows camp staff more time to focus on creating a safe, engaging experience for campers throughout the busy summer months.

“A large portion of our calls involve routine information that families need quickly,” explained Shannon Diamond, Program Manager for Beachwood Summer Camp. “The voice agent can provide those answers immediately, even outside office hours. More detailed or sensitive questions are still directed to our camp leadership team for personal follow-up.”

Safety and security remained top priorities throughout implementation. Sensitive matters such as pickup authorization changes, medication instructions, or camper-specific requests are never automated and continue to follow existing procedures with direct human involvement.

Community Services leadership worked closely with DragonMatics to ensure the system was trained responsibly with appropriate safeguards.

Alejandro, who immigrated to Beachwood from Colombia, has applied his technology expertise to a wide variety of businesses and government organizations. In addition to AI voice agents, DragonMatics offers automation solutions including chatbots, lead capture systems, review management tools, and more.

“My children have actually attended Beachwood Summer Camp and absolutely love it,” said Alejandro. “Delivering a helpful tool for the community that I now call home is something I take great pride in.”

HOLIDAY RUBBISH COLLECTION:

Due to Juneteenth, Beachwood Public Works will be closed on Friday, June 19. Please note Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday collections will remain on their regular schedule that week.

Successful Spring Shred Day

Thank you to the 382 Beachwood residents who securely discarded 13,790 pounds (6.9 tons) of documents during this year's Spring Shred Day, promoting both privacy and environmental responsibility.

This event is made possible through a Recycling Awareness Grant from the Cuyahoga County Solid Waste District. If you missed it, another Shred Day will take place this fall on Sept. 18.

Recycle Right

The Public Works Department has noticed an increase in non-recyclable items being placed in recycling cans, with some residents using them as rubbish receptacles. Placing rubbish in recycling bins contaminates loads, can divert entire trucks to landfill, and may also result in higher fees under the city's contract with the recycling facility.

The city may begin auditing recycling cans and issuing notices to households that are not in compliance. Repeated misuse may result in the removal of recycling cans.

We encourage residents to take a moment to scan the QR code and review what is recyclable. When in doubt, throw it out! Questions? Call Public Works at 216.292.1922.

Fertilizer Safety

When fertilizing, please make sure fertilizer stays on the lawn and is cleaned from sidewalks, driveways and streets. Chemicals also pose a health threat to pets. Failure to remove granules from previously mentioned locations is a violation of Ohio Pesticide Law. Please be sure to advise your landscaper to comply while fertilizing.

Instructor Spotlight: David Cole

Since 2011, David Cole has helped lead and grow Beachwood's tennis program, coaching athletes at every level including Varsity Boys, Varsity Girls, JV Girls, and Middle School Girls tennis.

During his time with Beachwood, the program has celebrated tremendous success, including team appearances in the OTCA State Final Four and multiple singles players and doubles teams qualifying for the state tournament. One of Cole's favorite memories came in 2013 when the Varsity Boys team finished 19-1, defeated Hawken to win the Northeast Ohio section of the OTCA Team Tournament, and advanced to the state final four.

Beyond the wins and accomplishments, Cole says the most rewarding part of coaching is working with students and watching their growth and improvement both on and off the court.

For Beachwood Community Services, David Cole leads youth tennis lessons, adult intro to tennis, and adult cardio tennis throughout the summer months. In addition to coaching at Beachwood, Cole is also a part-time instructor at the Mayfield Village Racquet Club and continues to play competitive USTA tennis, bringing his passion and experience to every practice and lesson.

Beachwood Police Department Wellness Room Gets New Life

On Tuesday, April 28, Beachwood 100 unveiled the newly remodeled Beachwood Police Department wellness room – a dedicated space designed to support the health, resilience, and well-being of the officers and staff who serve our community every day.

The updated room offers department members a place to pause, reset, and recharge during the demands of their work. For those who respond to emergencies, protect our neighborhoods, and carry the weight of difficult situations, a quiet and intentional space for wellness is an important investment in the people behind the badge.

Beachwood 100, which has supported Beachwood's safety forces for more than 50 years, helped clean out and significantly update the room as part of its ongoing commitment to the city's police and fire personnel.

"For more than 50 years, Beachwood 100 has been proud to support those who serve our community every day," said Ivor Kiwi, president of Beachwood 100. "Our organization gives residents and businesses the opportunity to give back to the police officers and firefighters who are always there for us."

Beachwood 100 provides financial assistance to safety force members in times of need, gifts an annual scholarship to a child of someone who serves the community, and supports meaningful projects, such as the wellness room.

Ivor said the project was a natural fit when Police Chief Dan Grispino brought the idea forward.

"Our officers face stress and challenges every day," he said. "When the chief came to us with this idea, we immediately saw how important it was. This room gives officers the opportunity, when appropriate, to step away, unwind, and rest during a shift."

Ivor thanked everyone who helped bring the room to life, including the Beachwood 100 board, Police Department, Service Department, city staff, and community donors. He noted that when the group first saw the space, it had the feel of "a college dorm room from the 1970s." Through teamwork, painting, repairs, new furniture, and thoughtful updates, the room was transformed into a welcoming and restorative environment.

Ivor also thanked Michelle Ryb, owner of Buy Rite Office Products, for donating a table and chairs.

Chief Grispino reiterated Ivor's appreciation. "When I started in this role, improving officers' wellness quickly became a priority and this renovated room will better support their mental and emotional health," he said.

"Statistically, more officers die by suicide than in the line of duty. When our officers are well, they are better able to serve the community – so supporting wellness is a win-win."

Mayor Justin Berns also thanked Beachwood 100 for its continued commitment to the city's safety forces.

"Beachwood 100 is always there for our police officers and firefighters," he said. "Whenever there is an opportunity to help, they step forward. We are grateful for all they do, and this project is another meaningful reminder of how much their support matters."

This project reflects a growing understanding that wellness matters – not only in moments of crisis, but every day. By creating space for care, reflection, and renewal, Beachwood continues to show appreciation for those who dedicate themselves to caring for others.

"When our officers are well, they are better able to serve the community – so supporting wellness is a win-win."

Developing Intellectual Entrepreneurs with a Social Conscience

Celebrating 20 Years: Linda LoGalbo Set to Retire

After 20 years of service to Beachwood Schools, Director of Curriculum & Instruction Linda LoGalbo is retiring on July 31. In her role, LoGalbo has worked side by side with educators to refine and strengthen curriculum across all grade levels. She will leave behind a legacy that was rooted in a commitment to ensuring student success.

"The Beachwood family has been a part of my life for the last 20 years and I will cherish the small moments the most," LoGalbo said. "Our school community is a global, diverse family where all are welcome. I will miss the daily interactions that I have with students, parents, and staff."

Reflecting on her career, LoGalbo points out that she has many memories during her tenure, including leading the middle school to the National School to Watch designation after reconfiguring the school to house grades 6-8; Hilltop earning the National Blue Ribbon Award; and creating student programs such as the Camp Ed-Venture, the Beachwood Medical Academy, and the Seal of Biliteracy.

"I have so many memories from my 20 years with Beachwood Schools," LoGalbo said. "I am proud of the processes that have been put into place. We have an established course of study revision process that leads to the annual board approval of our courses and the textbook adoption process has led to collaboration and consensus among K-5 teachers."

Beyond these professional accomplishments, LoGalbo describes completing her doctoral degree as her greatest personal milestone. This was achieved during an incredibly challenging time.

"In 2018, I began my doctoral program and was diagnosed with breast cancer," she said. "With the support of my colleagues, family, and friends, I was able to complete my treatment and continue my work as an administrator while continuing my doctoral studies. Finishing my dissertation was the most rewarding accomplishment of my career. It symbolized not just academic success, but also my ability to overcome adversity and thrive in the face of challenges."

Throughout her two decades with Beachwood Schools, LoGalbo has helped guide changes in education. Beachwood Middle School was the first one-to-one laptop school in the state of Ohio with devices for all students now the norm. A partnership with Facing History and Ourselves "Schools Where We Belong" program focuses on creating learning environments for all students, while the district's gifted programming has expanded under LoGalbo's guidance through the use of cluster grouping and acceleration in math and science. In addition, intervention programming has expanded in areas of reading and math. These days, LoGalbo and her team are learning more and more about artificial intelligence and how it fits into the classroom.

"One of the most exciting aspects of my job has been working with teachers to develop and implement a new course of study or curricular resource," she said. "The advent of artificial intelligence is the next frontier of technology, enhancing education. However, our mission remains the same for students: focusing on critical thinking, creativity, communication, and collaboration skills."

As LoGalbo prepares to move into retirement, she is looking forward to spending time with her family and friends. "My husband and I have established a bucket list of travel destinations. I'm also eager to explore some new hobbies, including photography."

What They're Saying About Linda

"For the 20 years we have worked together, Linda has been an inspiration. She's a steadfast, calm, determined, and thoughtful leader. I can always rely on her sensible, ethical, and dedicated approach to her work."

Dr. Robert Hardis, Superintendent

"Since the day I joined Beachwood, Linda has been a welcoming and supportive mentor who has played an important role in my growth as a leader. She has a remarkable ability to empower others, particularly women in leadership, through her example and encouragement. Her impact on this district and its students will be felt for years to come."

Dr. Jennifer Polak, Director of Pupil Services

"My respect and admiration for the leadership Linda has provided throughout the years in Beachwood go beyond words. She has done everything with grace, class, and with a keen focus on what was best for the kids. The programming she's initiated has established a foundation for student learning going forward."

Kevin Houchins, Director of Equity & Community Engagement

"I have had the privilege of working with Linda for the past two years and I will miss her knowledge, expertise, humor, and wisdom. If I ever need anything, I can always count on Linda to point me in the right direction. She will be dearly missed."

Amy Pinney, Principal, Hilltop

"Linda has been an incredible colleague and an even better person to work alongside. Her dedication to and investment in Beachwood Schools is unmatched. I've learned so much from her poise and leadership over the years. I wish her nothing but the very best in a retirement that is truly well-earned."

BHS Math Teachers Honored for Excellence

Kelly Taglieri and Kristen McGinness

Beachwood High School math teachers Kelly Taglieri and Kristen McGinness have been recognized for their excellence in teaching with the Outstanding Math Teacher Awards from the Greater Cleveland Council of Teachers of Mathematics (GCCTM). The award celebrates educators who demonstrate outstanding instructional practices, creativity in the classroom, and a commitment to student success in math. The duo was recognized at the awards banquet on May 7.

Taglieri has 31 years of experience, including 17 years at Beachwood where she has served as a math intervention specialist at the high school. "It's an honor to be selected as a recipient of this award," she said. "I feel that my work with students has made a difference in their performance and that makes me incredibly proud of being an educator."

McGinness is now in her 15th year of teaching and her fourth year at Beachwood High School. "This award means a lot to me because I stopped teaching when I had my oldest daughter and did not think I would return to teaching," she noted. "I found the opportunity to be a part-time math tutor and then a part-time teacher. That made me realize how much I missed teaching and receiving this award confirmed to me that I made the right decision to come back to teaching."

In the classroom, both teachers encourage students to be active and engaged. Taglieri incorporates hands-on learning experiences which provide meaningful opportunities for students to explore concepts. McGinness likes to get her students involved as well, noting that her new course, Quantitative Reasoning, is one of her favorites because it emphasizes students working together to answer real life questions or solve a real life problem.

Beachwood Schools Earns Best Community for Music Education Award

For the 21st consecutive year, the Beachwood City School District has been honored with the Best Communities for Music Education designation from The National Association of Music Merchants (NAMM) Foundation for its outstanding commitment to music education.

Now in its 26th year, the award program recognizes outstanding efforts by teachers, administrators, parents/guardians, students and community leaders who have made music education part of a well-rounded education.

Beachwood is one of just 57 districts in Ohio to receive the award this year and one of 1,008 honored throughout the country.

Beachwood's music program includes band, orchestra, choir, and general music instruction beginning in elementary school. Students regularly participate in local, regional, and statewide competitions and honors ensembles throughout the year.

"Beachwood Schools is honored to once again be recognized as a Best Community for Music Education," said Shelley McKenzie, Beachwood General Music and Choir teacher. "Receiving this award reflects the commitment of our students, as well as the continued support we receive from the entire Beachwood community. We are proud to provide students with opportunities to explore their creativity and share their talents through music."

City of Beachwood's Arbor Day Celebration

The City of Beachwood, Beachwood Historical Society, and Beachwood Schools recently hosted an Arbor Day tree-planting ceremony near the Beachwood Community Center, welcoming students from Fairmount Early Childhood Center to take part in the celebration.

Joined by Mayor Justin Berns, City Council members, and other city leaders, the preschoolers helped plant three sugar maple trees, each taking a turn shoveling soil around the newly planted trees. Before the planting, students learned how trees provide oxygen, create homes for animals, offer shade and help keep the environment healthy. Several students also marked the occasion by singing a song about trees.

The event highlighted Beachwood's ongoing commitment to environmental stewardship. Thanks to the dedication of the city's Public Works team in planting and maintaining trees, Beachwood has proudly maintained its Tree City USA distinction for more than 30 years.

Special thanks also go to the Community Services Department for organizing the annual Arbor Day celebration and to the city leaders who attended in support of this meaningful tradition.

Behind the Eyes: Beachwood Artist Wally Kaplan Brings Portraits to Akron Gallery

Beachwood resident and portrait artist Wally Kaplan will present her upcoming solo exhibition, Behind the Eyes: Portraits by Wally Kaplan, at Gallery 732, inside the Akron Woman's City Club, 732 W. Exchange St., Akron.

The show reflects Wally's deep fascination with portraiture and her ongoing series, The Human Condition. Working in charcoal and oil paint, she creates compelling images of people of all ages, genders, and walks of life, inviting viewers to look beyond the surface and consider the emotion, dignity, and story held within each face.

"Our world today is not always a beautiful one, but it is possible to find beauty and dignity in many places and unlikely faces," Wally said.

Her portraits are intentionally open to interpretation. One viewer may see joy; another may recognize sorrow, strength, defiance, or defeat. For Wally, that emotional response is where the power of portraiture lives.

"What connects us to each other is the human condition that we see reflected in other faces, which allows us to make a personal and emotional connection," she said. "There is always a story behind the eyes and I search to find it."

Behind the Eyes will be on view at Gallery 732 from June 2 through July 28. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Tuesdays through Saturdays. The gallery is closed Sundays and Mondays.

Wally will be in the gallery as guest artist on Friday, June 26, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., offering visitors the opportunity to meet her and hear more about the portraits and the stories that inspired them.

For more information or to arrange a time to meet Wally at the gallery on another day, contact wally@wallysart.com.

Wish Granted

An article about Barry Henkin, written by Arlene Fine, was published in the February issue of Beachwood Buzz. In the story, Barry – long known as the “Mayor of Menorah Park” – shared his wish to meet Beachwood Mayor Justin Berns. In March, that wish became reality. Barry, who is also a 2013 inductee into the Cleveland Heights High School Distinguished Hall of Fame and a lifelong fan of Reba McEntire’s music, was thrilled to finally meet the mayor and discuss how each of them, in his own way, helps enhance the lives of Beachwood residents.

Beachwood Students Recognized in Ohio PTA Reflections Art Competition

For more than 50 years, the Ohio PTA has sponsored a program now known as Reflections, inspiring millions of students to create original artwork in response to a student-selected theme.

In its inaugural year, the Beachwood Community Special Education PTA (SEPTA) had two artist submissions, both of which were recognized at the state-level Ohio PTA Reflections art competition, out of more than 600 submissions from throughout the state. The 2025-2026 theme was "I Belong."

Congratulations to Medha Lalit Iyer and Adva Dana for being recognized in this competition.

Medha, a sixth grader at Beachwood Middle School, received the Outstanding Achievement Award for her original song, Flying North in D Major, in the Music Composition category.

Adva, a ninth grader at Beachwood High School, received the third Honorable Mention for her origami creation in the Visual Arts Accessible Arts division.

Visit the SEPTA Reflections page at <https://beachwoodsepta.givebacks.com/w/reflections> to view their work and read their artist statements.

The 2026-2027 theme is "What My Culture Means to Me." SEPTA will begin accepting submissions in the fall. For more information and to stay informed of competition details and deadlines, visit the SEPTA website: <https://beachwoodsepta.givebacks.com>.

Students Experience Global Flavors in Culinary Arts Class

Students in the Excel TECC Culinary Arts program enjoyed a flavorful and educational experience, thanks to a special visit from Board of Education member Rini Ghosh. Bringing the rich traditions of Indian cuisine into the kitchen, Rini led an engaging, hands-on session that introduced students to ingredients, techniques, and cultural perspectives.

Throughout the visit, students explored the depth and complexity of Indian cooking, learning how spices can transform simple ingredients into vibrant, layered dishes. The menu featured a delicious chicken curry; spiced potatoes seasoned with cumin, black cumin, and five spice; and green beans prepared with coconut. Each dish offered a unique combination of flavors.

Holi Celebration

The Beachwood Schools Indian American Affinity Group hosted a colorful Holi celebration on May 3 at Beachwood High School. The family-friendly event brought the community together to celebrate the Festival of Colors, a tradition that symbolizes the triumph of good over evil and the spirit of unity. Participants enjoyed an afternoon filled with color play, activities, and traditional sweets.

Creativity on Display at District Art Show

The annual Beachwood Schools K-12 Art Show, sponsored by the Beachwood Arts Council, was on display throughout the month of May at the Beachwood Community Center. Opening night on April 30 brought together families and community members to celebrate the creativity and talent of Beachwood students.

Upon entering the exhibition, guests were greeted by colorful works from students at every grade level, including 3D pieces, drawings, paintings, collages, portfolios from AP classes, and more.

The show was organized by the district's art teachers – Chunny Hahn, Sarah Krieger, Rachel Hartwig, and Heather Grano. Their dedication and planning throughout the school year help to make this event an engaging experience for all who attend.
